

Call for Presentations

2014 KOTESOL National Conference

“Change in the Classroom: Principled Pragmatism”

Saturday, May 31st 2014 Global Plaza, Kyungpook National University, Daegu

The conference committee for the 2014 Korea TESOL National Conference is pleased to announce its Call for Presentations at this time. Our goal for this year's event is to explore Principled Pragmatism in the Korean and Global ELT setting. The theme means that we are not committed to a single theory or aspect associated with the SLA process. Instead, we choose to explore how problems, issues and challenges are dealt with in real teaching contexts using a divergent range of methodologies, strategies and techniques.

Considering this conference's focus, we invite any proposal that focuses on improving practice in the classroom through informed means. The proposals should, however, fit into one of the following four formats:

- Practical Research Reports that Address Needs and Challenges
 - Especially Action Research Projects
- Presentations of Classroom Techniques & Practices Addressing Students' Needs
- Interactive Workshops Presenting Principled ELT Practices
- Engaging Poster Sessions
