Present at the 25th Annual Korea TESOL – PAC International Conference

Seoul, Korea 2017/02/14

Starting this month, Korea TESOL invites English educators, applied linguists, and scholars to submit presentation proposals for its 25th annual Korea TESOL International Conference. The conference, this year held in conjunction with the Pan-Asian Consortium of Language Teaching Societies (PAC), is scheduled for 21-22 October 2017 at Sookmyung Women's University in Seoul.

The KOTESOL international conference typically attracts about a thousand attendees from Korea, across Asia, and beyond. It is a great venue for English educators, applied linguists, and scholars to present their expertise, share ideas, discuss experiences, and inspire others. As one presenter, Stewart Gray, stated, "It's a broad audience. Come, enjoy yourself and talk about your interests. The conference provides dozens of ways to think about the teaching-learning process, practically and theoretically. It feels good to have your work discussed among your peers."

This year's conference theme is "Why Are We Here? Analogue Learning in a Digital Era." The theme is intended to explore the relevance of face-to-face learning when technological advances have made it possible to create online and distance-learning options.

Korea TESOL also welcomes proposals on a wide array of English language teaching (ELT) and English language learning (ELL) topics. One specific series includes the prefix "101" and features sessions intended for participants who are new to the ELT community. While considering topics, presenters also have a variety of formats to choose from: workshops, panels, and research presentations are a few of the options available.

The deadline for those wishing to submit a presentation proposal is May 31st. For more information about the conference and the proposal process, please visit <http://koreatesol.org/ic2017>.

Note:

"KOTESOL" is the abbreviated form of "Korea TESOL," which in turn, is the abbreviated form of "Korea Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages."
